MORNING WORKSHOPS

Lobbying & Advocacy: Free Speech with Lawmakers - Room 355

What do lobbyists really do? Who hires lobbyists? What are the rules that lobbyists have to follow? What does Citizens United have to do with lobbying? Answer these questions and more with a former lobbyist. Presenter: Chip Terhune

Speak Your Truth: Activism in Your Community - Room 294

Have an idea for change, but not sure how to make it happen? Want to motivate and mobilize your fellow students and your community? This interactive workshop will feature students from the Bus Project describing their own advocacy experiences and helping you to launch your own. Presenter: The Bus Project

Fake News. Social Media & the Truth - Room 296

We are still learning how the corruption of social media networks distributed thousands of "fake news" stories prior to the 2016 Election. How does the rise of fake news and the acceptance of so-called "alternative facts" challenge authentic journalism and threaten our democracy? Students will actively learn how to distinguish fake from real news sources. Presenter: Janell Cinquini

Know Your 1st Amendment Rights: School vs. the Street - Room 298

What is protected by the First Amendment at school? Is it really different than anywhere else? Learn how your First Amendment rights are protected or limited depending on where you are and who you are talking to. Presenter: Kelly Simon

Know Your Rights: Search, Seizure, You, and the Police - Room 327

What are your rights if a police officer stops you on the street? In your car? What if you are merely a passenger in someone else's car? Can a police officer force you to unlock and turn over your cellphone or open your social media page? Learn about your constitutional rights in situations where law enforcement and individual rights come together.

Presenters: Sean Lo and Viktoria Safarian

Does a Free Society Include Net Neutrality? - Room 328/9

Should the Internet be free for everyone? Should the government regulate who has access to the Internet? What does the Constitution say about Net Neutrality? Get the answers to these questions and more! Presenter: Ed Piper

Networking: How to Use Speech to Influence Others - Room 333

What do advocacy groups consider when speaking with lawmakers and other groups? How do advocates make the best argument for a position? How do constitutional rights intersect with advocacy? Join this interactive workshop to experience what it's like to be an advocate and to make decisions about tough issues. Presenters: Jessica Gallagher

Cyberbullying, Cyberstalking, and Free Speech - Room 338

Recent studies show that victims of cyberbullying are more than twice as likely to self-harm or attempt suicide. Various efforts are being made worldwide to limit cyberbullies' speech. But is that constitutional? Presenter: Quinn Harrington

AFTERNOON WORKSHOPS

Race and the Law: Conversations About Race - Room 355

Dr. Cornel West once said, "a profound hatred of African people...sits at the center of American civilization." This session considers how race and racism shape societal relations and institutional discrimination through the legal system. Students will engage in a discussion about how the law has developed over time with respect to issues of race. Presenter: Hon. Melvin Oden-Orr

Speak Your Truth: Activism in Your Community - Room 294

Have an idea for change, but not sure how to make it happen? Want to motivate and mobilize your fellow students and your community? This interactive workshop will feature students from the Bus Project describing their own advocacy experiences and helping you to launch your own.

Presenter: The Bus Project

Speech as Personal Power: Consent & the Law - Room 296

As if sexual relationships are not complicated enough, issues of consent, social media, and how claims of sexual assault are handled on college campuses are giving rise to new perspectives and legal standards. Hear from an experienced criminal defense attorney about these complex and important issues and participate in a question & answer session where you can raise your own concerns. Presenter: Noah Horst

Hate Speech & Free Speech: Where Do They Meet? - Room 327

Recent FBI data has revealed an increase in hate crimes in America since the 2016 election. The rise in hate activity provides an opportunity to discuss the nature of the first amendment as well as the terroristic nature of hate crimes and incidents. This workshop presents an overview of the state of hate and hate crimes in 2018 and addresses the free speech issues that manifest as hate impacts students. The history of white supremacy in Oregon will be addressed as well as the role the alt-right has played in the current climate. Presenter: Randy Blazak

Mock Trial: Settling Conflicts in a Free Society - Room 328/9

Finley MacPherson makes a living fishing in the Columbia River. Coho Community Association wants to use river water to protect their community from wildfire. Finley thinks they are really just using the water to irrigate the golf course and ruining the fishing industry in the area. Join this interactive workshop to learn how Mock Trial can bring the law alive for you!

Presenters: Village Home Mock Trial Team

Is a Free Press Really Free?: A Reporters Panel - Room 338

Reporters from The Oregonian, Willamette Week, The Portland Business Journal, and Portland Mercury will answer your questions about what it means to be a reporter in 2019, how the First Amendment intersects with their work, the world of print news, and how you can get involved in journalism.

Presenters: Therese Bottomly, Matthew Kish, Aaron Mesh, Alex Zielinski

Welcoming Young People to a Free Society: Immigration and the Law - Room 298

The U.S. Congress has pending and current legislation regarding Dreamers, legal residents, and undocumented immigrants in terms of security, economics, international relations and the U.S. Constitution. Learn about Dreamers rights, state policy, sanctuary rules for cities and states, what has changed and what lies ahead from a panel of experts. Presenters: Jennifer Healey and Caryn Crosthwait

Networking: How to Use Speech to Influence Others - Room 333

What do advocacy groups consider when speaking with lawmakers and other groups? How do advocates make the best argument for a position? How do constitutional rights intersect with advocacy? Join this interactive workshop to experience what it's like to be an advocate and to make decisions about tough issues. Presenters: Jessica Gallagher
